There has been many stories written about the topic of harvesting aquatic weeds along the St. Lawrence River. The Liberal government has decided not to fund the weed harvest program and that fact has upset many people who believe the harvesting program does much to improve the local economy by keeping the St. Lawrence open to small boats and sport fishermen as well as tourists.

The Liberal government will not fund the project . . . Noble Villeneuve the MPP for SD & G has spearheaded the fight to have that decision reversed but even with the assistance of his party leader, Larry Grossman; the decision has still not been changed.

There were stories that the problem was about to be solved. Terri Lalonde of the Seaway Valley Tourist Council and Bob Roth the Deputy Reeve of Charlottenburg indicated that the Raisin Region Conservation Authority were buying the weed harvesting equipment and thus

There's nothing to worry about," said the paratrooper instructor to the nervous private. "All you have to do is jump, count to three, and pull the ripcord."

"But what if it doesn't work?" asked the soldier.

"Then open your reserve chute. Just remember, count to three and pull the handle. If the main chute doesn't work, use the emergency. A truck will be waiting to take you back to base."

The soldier jumped, counted to three, and pulled the handle. Nothing happened. He pulled the reserve handle. It failed as well.

"Just my luck," moaned the soldier. "I bet that truck won't be there either!"

ALDERMAN TERRI LALONDE CITY OF CORNWALL

Very shortly, Cornwall City Council will mark the end of the first year with our new city council. With six new aldermen around the table, many fresh ideas and proposals have come forward and I personally am convinced that, as a working council, we are off to a great start. The work load and number of committees has increased but this work load appears to be quite evenly divided among us and, as a council, we look forward to many productive happenings over the next few years.

At this particular time of year we, as your representatives, are "gearing outselves up" to meet the challenges we will deal with very soon as we tackle the chore of budget deliberations and attempting to set a fair mill rate for 1987.

The needs and concerns of the citizens of Cornwall is (or should be) the number one concern of all members of council. We must endeavour to make this city of ours a good place to live, to work and to play. We must encourage economic development. We must encourage additional housing to respond to the severe shortage which now exists. We lack adequate facilities to respond to the needs of the chronically ill. We must respond to the needs of our senior citizens. We must listen to the problems of our youth. We must press for the extension of city services to all our residents (water, sewers, bus, etc.)

City council depends on input from you, the residents, to make us aware of specific needs and/or problems so that we might work on your behalf to try to solve these problems. Don't be afraid to call upon your mayor or anyone of your aldermen no matter how small or how complex your question might be . . . you elected us to represent you . . . all of you.

NORMAN WARNER REPORTS

The Speech from the Throne on October 1, 1986 signalled the beginning of a new session of Parliament. The government reaffirmed its commitment to Canadians in four broad areas of our national life — economic renewal, national reconciliation, constructive internationalism and social justice. Some of the highlights from the speech include the following:

ECONOMIC RENEWAL

— Economic renewal will be furthered by continued progress in restoring health to our public finances, through trade initiatives and through tax reform.

— The government will spare no effort in seeking to protect the interests of Canada's farmers in the face of unfair pricing and subsidy practices conducted beyond our borders. Aware of the present difficulties, our government will work in close consultation with provincial governments and farm organizations to help alleviate personal hardship in our farm communities.

— The government will continue its policy of prudent fiscal and financial management, and will seek practical ways to provide individual Canadians with the incentive and opportunity to achieve greater security and well-being for themselves and for their families.

NATIONAL RECONCILIATION

— The government will continue consultations with the provinces in order to bring Quebec into the Canadian Constitution.

— The Official Languages Act will be revised to ensure that it conforms with the Charter of Rights.

CONSTRUCTIVE INTERNATIONALISM

— The government will continue its concerted efforts through the Commonwealth and the United Nations until apartheid is abolished in South Africa.

— Arms control and disarmament will remain essential parts of Canadian foreign policy. We will continue to contribute to multilateral discussions on arms control and actively encourage dialogue between the superpowers towards preserving world peace and security.

SOCIAL JUSTICE

— The government is resolved to defend and strengthen the institution of the Canadian family.

— The government will initiate discussions with the provinces, business and labour with a view to implementing a concerted approach to childcare.

— As a national priority, we will continue to remove the barriers that have prevented women from participating freely and equitably in the mainstream of Canadian society.

Save lives and gain independence with bathroom safety products

The National Safety Council confirms that over 200,000 non-fatal accidents occurred in bathrooms across the country last year, making this room one of the most dangerous in the home. By comparison, the National Fire Protection Association notes that 28,000 civilians were injured in fires at home. Yet while much attention has been paid to the importance of smoke alarms in homes, most of us limit our bathroom safety measures to putting a rubber mat or some "decorator" rubber decals in the shower or tub.

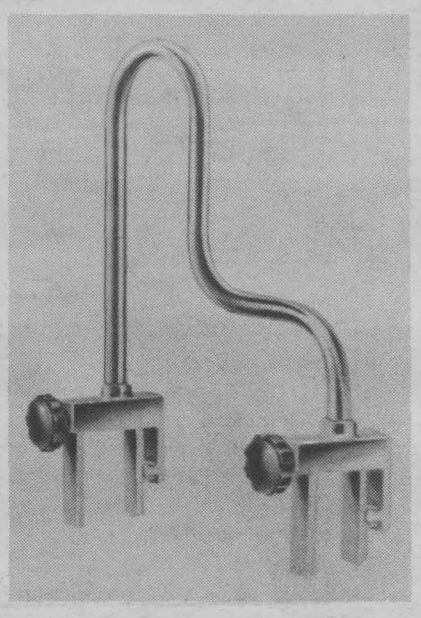
Michael Molloy, market manager, Home Care Products for The Futuro Company, notes that a simple thing like their bathtub safety rail can prevent many serious accidents. Unfortunately, this product often is installed only when there is someone elderly or seriously disabled involved, despite the fact that the National Safety Council says the most serious bathroom accidents involve slips and falls as well as electric shock, electrocution and drowning in tubs or showers. That's why Molloy has commented that everyone benefits from the presence of a safety rail.

"For example, there are those people who are obviously disabled, although temporarily (e.g., a cast on their leg) as well as thousands of people who don't recognize themselves as being impaired, such as the person with a dreadful hangover. These people and many others are just not up to par, physically and/or mentally — and that sets up a prime situation for an accident. A simple bathtub safety rail could greatly reduce their chances of injury — and the same holds true for so-called 'healthy people.' After all, how many times have we heard of someone's being injured by slipping on a bar of soap in the tub, or of a child who trips and cuts a lip on a faucet?"

Of course there's no doubt that the elderly and seriously disabled require extra steps to insure their safety at home. Sharon Gamache, manager of the Council's Community Safety Programs, notes that "last year, 6300 people died in falls throughout the home; and of those people 4900 were 65 or older." Gamache notes protective measures ranging from thermostatic mixing valves, which prevent accidental scaldings, to various grab bars and safety frames.

"When we're healthly," says Molloy, "we really don't consider the efforts our muscles must make in performing the simple acts of standing or sitting, but only weakness or fatigue, particularly in the legs, can increase the chance of injury."

To compensate for such problems, Futuro manufactures such items as its shower safety stool, for the person who can no longer stand in the shower unsupported, as well as elevated toilet seats and toilet safety frames which provide easy access to the commode — particularly important for those who must transfer to and from a wheelchair.



JUL '86

A WISE INVESTMENT for everyone's safety is this "Hi-Lo" Bathtub Safety Rail made by Futuro.†

Maria Markham, an urban planner who works as a municipal bond analyst, notes that bathroom safety products such as Futuro's, offer the disabled not only enormous economic advantages, but psychological ones as well.

"Without these products," she notes, "the elderly and disabled might have no hope of leading an independent life. Most of them would remain tied to homes and family members or would have to spend their lives in nursing homes or other specially equipped care facilities, which taxpayers support. Instead, many of them can lead independent, self-supporting lives because items like safety rails and elevated toilet seats are available (with more items being added all the time)."

Markham speaks from experience, as both her parents utilize various safety devices in their bathroom. Her mother has multiple sclerosis, her father arthritis. The installation of the kinds of products discussed by Molloy has enabled them to stay in the Long Island home where they raised their children. "If my parents didn't have these products, they'd probably have to leave the home they love and move to a nursing home, disposing of many cherished items in the process. Even if they could simply move to a smaller apartment, they'd probably have to spend at least $5000 modifying their new facilities. Instead, they feel independent and in control of their lives — and that's a feeling that nothing can replace."†

A psychologist found that his patient was somewhat reluctant to reveal the exact nature of his difficulties, so he decided to try a simple experiment.

Taking a pad and pencil, he drew a vertical line. He showed it to the young man and asked, "What do you think this is that I just drew?"

"A very sexy girl," his patient answered.

The therapist then drew another vertical line with a horizontal line crossing it. "Now what have I drawn?"

"A sexy girl bending over," the man quickly replied.

The psychologist then drew a horizontal line. "What is it this time?" he asked.

"A sexy girl lying down," came his swift answer.

The therapist, after studying his visitor for a moment said, "Let's face it. You're hopelessly oversexed."

"Me, oversexed?" said the patient with incredulity. "You're the one drawing all the dirty pictures!"

the problem of harvesting weeds would be solved.

Newspaper reports suggested that the Conservation Authority has purchased the equipment but that is not the case. Conservation Authority manager. Mike Lalonde says the authority is looking into ways of obtaining funding to purchase the equipment but at this time they do not have the necessary funds to purchase it, let alone operate it. The authority is approaching various provincial ministries looking for a one time grant of 90 thousand dollars to purchase the machinery.

Imagine if you will . . . the Liberal government has refused to fund the program at a cost of 80 thousand dollars. It has been said that 80 thousand dollars is a drop in the bucket when it comes to monies being spent on advertising to attract tourists to come to Ontario . . . the Liberal government has recently introduced a new initiative program to boost tourism in Eastern Ontario. The program is called Destinations East . . . 3 million dollars has been allocated to this program. If the Liberal government were to dip into this once to the tune of 90 thousand dollars . . . then the Raisin Region Conservation Authority would be able to purchase the equipment and the weeds would be harvested.

Perhaps, it is time for the Brian Lynch's, Claude Porrier's, Morgan Major's and the like to pressure their friends in Toronto to set aside the fact that this is an opposition held area and pull out the bucks.

The weed harvesting program is an important issue in this part of Ontario. It is one that will not just die off because of the onset of winter. Mr. Peterson we need that money . . . and who knows what inroads you might make when the weeds are once again cut.

VOX POPULI
IN ANSWER TO YOUR CALLS

My first column struck a lot of nerves, the phone rang for days, some for and some vehemently against. If you call, be sure it's me that answers. A guest of mine was horrified by an angry, obscene caller — anonymous. The caller should have answered, in writing to this paper.

Several callers had one thing in common that they requested me to address, as they didn't feel bold enough themselves. Let's face it, not everyone wants to offend and alienate a lot of nice people as I am about to do. I'm sorry, but it needs to be said.

Many worthy ladies would love to be more involved and more active in their church. However, they become discouraged, because they are only welcome in the kitchen. It's rather demeaning to have to serve many years doing dishes, and only asked to participate when K.P. duties and pie-bakers are needed.

In some churches and other organizations there is an "old guard" or "cliques" who run things and make the ground rules. They impede the growth of their organizations by not allowing much input from newcomers or youngers members, who have many talents and are willing to serve. They hold office far too long.

No one is denying the many years that these people have faithfully served, and the community is grateful for their efforts. However, there comes a time to step down, and hand over to the younger ones. Sure the newer people will stumble and falter, but surely the wise older members will be ready and willing to offer support and encouragement in the true Christian spirit.

Better the youngsters should make a few human errors than get tired of dish-pan hands and turn their backs on what is supposed to be Christian unity.

It is sad to be closed out and feel unwelcome. It is against the Christian ethic and brotherly and sisterly love.

Before your hackles rise, you get angry and call me, please ask yourself what have you done to ask the dishwashers for their ideas and opinions, then acted on them, or invited them to serve on committees. It isn't easy to be an unselfish Christian — I find it very tough.

But serving the church shouldn't mean the same people are always church hall servers.

The meek don't want to inherit the earth, they just want to get out of the kitchen.

PAY TV SHOWCASE

A dream of a movie, one of the all-time tear-jerker movies and a peek at country music month in Nashville. Highlights, according to the writer, of this week on the pay television networks.

The dreamy movie is entitled, aptly, Dreamchild. It airs October 15 and is the story of Alice Hargreaves. So, you say, who is she? Merely the Alice of Alice in Wonderland fame. I know, you thought the whole thing was a fantasy dreamed up by someone named Lewis Carroll. Well, it was a fantasy but Carroll's real name was the Rev. Charles Dodgson who used to tell these fantasies to a 10-year old girl back in the 1860's. At that time she was Alice Liddell.

In 1932, Alice is now Alice Hargreaves and is on her way to New York where she is to receive an honorary degree from Columbia University in connection with the centeniary of Lewis Carroll's birth. And for the part she played in inspiring the Rev. to write about Alice.

Dreamchild is a film for adults about the effect of childhood fantasies. It is set up as a paradox — the New York press' idea of Alice in Wonderland as a simplistic reaffirmation of the joys of childhood, set against Alice's darker memories of Dodgson's deep and probably unhealthy fascination for her.

The film is a superb balance between fantasy (supplied by Jim Henson's Muppets) and flashback to expose an Alice who must come to terms with an image of herself that has nothing to do with what actually happened. Dreamchild is a film that should not be missed.

Now for the tear-jerker. Made in 1959, Imitation of Life is a remake of a 1934 melodrama. Get out the hankies for this is a classic soggy saga. Lana Turner, Sandra Dee and John Gavin are on hand for this unlikely tale of a mother and daughter who fall for the same guy. The heavy sadness comes when Juanita, Turner's black confidante, kicks the bucket. It's good for the sinuses and airs on the 15th and 18th.

And, speaking of soggy sagas, no one has more hurting music than them there folks down to Nashville, Tennessee.

October is "Country Music Month", a time when the stars come home to attend the Country Music Association Awards and wish the Grand Old Opry a happy birthday. The Nashville Network celebrates with six concert specials from Saturday, October 11 through the 25th, including performances by Charlie Daniels, Ronnie Milsap, The Oak Ridge Boys, Hank Williams Jr., Mickey Gilley and others.

The big show is this Saturday when the 61st birthday of the Grand Old Opry is celebrated.

And a final word for friend Pat Marsden. Actually, I've only met and talked with him on one or two occasions. I still consider him a friend. That's the kind of guy Marsden is. Having thrown his boss at CFTO over a desk in a dispute, Marsden can now be seen every Wednesday night at 10:30 on TSN.

Last week's Cryptoquip: CAN A FEW BIRDWATCHERS BE SORT OF FEATHERBRAINED?

Today's Cryptoquip clue: F equals T

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

HOME WORKSHOP FILE

NEW PRODUCTS FOR THE HOME AND SHOP

By Larry Eisinger

The taken-for-granted vacuum cleaner is a boon for shop and home alike. New types of plastic formulas and methods of molding have made the wet/dry vac a common home and shop appliance because the vacuum also can be used to suck up liquid. And if you have ever had a basement flood from either a storm or a broken pipe you will appreciate the water removal capabilities of a wet vac.

In recent years the portable hand vac has become a favorite appliance for millions of homes and now we have a new version of this handy appliance — one that not only performs as a regular dust and dirt vac but when fitted with a special squeegee it sucks up kitchen and bathroom spills. Every home should have one! For less than $30.00.

Vacs are constantly being improved and new tools created to be powered by the vac. The turbine sander illustrated is such a tool and it can do certain jobs better and at less cost than sanders with a built in dust collecting system. The unit can be used with any 1¼-or 2½-inch hose and the ⅓ sheet pad has an orbit of 10,000 rpms per minute.

While the sander can be used for the usual wood sanding operations, because it is powered by a vacuum cleaner if the vac is of the wet/dry type this tool is ideal for dry wall sanding. It will sand a joint with virtually no visible dust — which you cannot say with about any other sander. And if you have never sanded a taped joint and produced plaster dust that permeated the entire house you will never appreciate just how effective this tool can be for drywall work. Also for about $38.00.

As a reader service, Larry Eisinger has published two HARD-COVER books on CARPENTRY, PLUMBING. With hundreds of photos and drawings, these books will help you do a better job. If you are not completely satisfied, your money will be refunded! Each book costs $3.95, plus 70 cents shipping. Send $4.65 for each title to HOME WORKSHOP, care of your newspaper, Box 158, Staten Island, N.Y. 10314.

Every night for a month, the widow had an obscene phonecall.

"Oh, Kitty," said the voice, "I'd love to have you here beside me — the things I'd do!"

Kitty finally called the police, who tapped her line and arrested the guy responsible, while he was in a phone booth.

Before getting in the car he was advised "You are entitled to one call." After borrowing a dime, he dialed a number, then said softly "Hello, Kitty."

"ABOUT REFEREES AND OTHER THINGS"

By Stan Fischler

REFEREES OF OLD: Hockey referees of the past had some harrowing experiences in their years on the ice but some have amusing stories to tell.

King Clancy remembers one about a female Blackhawks' fan at Chicago Stadium.

"Oh, she was a lovely lady," recalls Clancy, who is still active in the Toronto Maple Leafs front-office. "She occupied a seat close to the ice and every time I would jump onto the side boards to get out of the way (of a play), she'd come running and jab me (in the derriere) with a hat pin."

These old-time refs were better at staying in charge of the game. They did not allow the jockeying during faceoffs that goes on today.

"Clancy had a way of handling that," says former ref and assistant director of officiating John McCauley. "If they wouldn't settle down on the faceoff, he'd throw the puck in the corner."

Referees today also have one advantage over their predecessors. They make more money.

Bill Chadwick was paid $75 a game when he started. Today the yearly salaries range between $35,000 and $80,000.

"Years ago you didn't make any money but it ws more fun," says present ref Ron Wicks. "Now it's a business."

GUSTAFSSON-POTVIN: Bengt Gustafson of the Washington Capitals has received many get well cards and phone calls since his season-ending leg fracture in a March 28th game against the Islanders. He broke a tibia after being checked by Denis Potvin of the Islanders. One of the phone calls he received was from Potvin.

"That shows class," says Gustafsson. "About the injury, I don't think he did it intentionally. It just happened. His call made me feel better."

Gustafsson has not decided whether he will return to his native Sweden or play next year with the Caps. Most insiders believe he'll quit the Caps.

LIUT SPEAKS OUT: Whalers goalie, Mike Liut, who doubles as his clubs union representative, is adamantly opposed to drug-testing in the NHL.

"I'm not naive enough to think we have absolutely no drugs in professional hockey," says Liut, "but I haven't seen any in this league in three-four years. I think what people should remember first is that we are human beings. We don't need a witch hunt."

KINGS STABLE: Despite suffering through a dismal season in which they failed to qualify for the playoffs in the weak Smythe division, the Los Angles Kings won't make any wholesale changes.

"The Kings' coaching staff (led by coach Pat Quinn) will be here a long time," says g.m. Rogie Vachon, who recently received a new three year contract from owner Jerry Buss. "The problem with this organization is that it hasn't been very stable."

(The other problem is that Quinn is a poor coach.)

GRESCHNER'S DIET: Being married to super model Carol Alt has had a positive effect on Ranger defenseman Ron Greschner. Her careful eating habits have rubbed on on Ron.

"I used to eat a lot of beef and junk food," says Greschner. "Carol helped me to change my attitudes. We eat more often at Japanese and Mexican restaurants, and I've cut out meat to maybe one or twice a week.

Greschner also will cut into the Rangers vault this summer. He's demanding a fat, new contract and might even force a trade.

BOWMAN ON GOALIES: Scotty Bowman was talking about his two favorite goalies on his St. Louis Blues team -- Jacques Plante and Glenn Hall.

"They had particular ways of playing certain situations," remembers Bowman. "On 2-on-1 situations, Plante, the angles master, wanted to take the shooter and have the defenseman stay in the middle. Hall wanted the defenseman to rush the shooter, hoping to force a bad shot or a pass. And if the pass did get through, he'd come out and smother the play in that butterfly style."

The important idea according to Bowman, was that the defenseman knew how to play in front of each goalie. That was decided before the season started.

RISEBROUGH'S FUTURE: The Flames' Doug Risebrough admits he's looking for a coaching job.

"I've never denied that I'd enjoy remaining in the game in some way," says Risebrough. "After my playing career is over a lot will depend on the quality of the job and what organization it is with. I'd like to be in a place where I'll get a chance to develop in whatever job I'm in."

At 32, Risebrough has spent a dozen years in the NHL with Montreal and Calgary. His style has never wavered.

"I've always approached the game honestly," he says. "Nobody has to kick me in the butt to get me going. I've always given my best and tried hard."

FOTIU SAYS FERGUSON IS TOPS: When Nick Fotiu was signed by Ranger g.m. John Ferguson on July 23, 1976, Fotiu was given number 22. He has worn that number with the Whalers, Rangers and now, with the Flames. And Nick still admires Ferguson, g.m. of Winnipeg.

"I used to watch Fergie when the Canadians came to Madison Square Garden," sayd Fotiu. He gave 100 per cent all of the time. If it wasn't for him, some of those flags wouldn't be hanging from the Forum ceiling."

"We (1979 Rangers) went to the finals with his team. If he had been there, we could have won the Stanley Cup."

COMMUNITY FORUM
COMPREHENSIVE RECREATION PLAN

Over the past year and a half, the City of Cornwall and their Consultants for this project, Rethink Inc. of Peterborough, have been researching demand and trends, and studying every aspect of leisure services in Cornwall. The study is at the point where findings and conclusions have been reached and initial recommendations have been prepared. As the last major step in the public consultation program for this study, a Community Forum has been organized to provide interested residents with an opportunity to discuss the conclusions and early recommendations before the final plan is prepared. This input will be very important in shaping the final recommendations.

Over 90 elected officials, committee members, municipal staff, agency representatives, interest group representatives and a cross-section of other residents have already been invited. We have openings for another 20 interested residents. If you would like to come, you should register with the Parks and Recreation Department by no later than October 17th so we can reserve a place for you and send you some advance information. Registration will be on a first come basis. The date, time and place are listed below:

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1986
CORNWALL CIVIC COMPLEX — SALON "B"
7:00 P.M.

Call the Parks and Recreation Department at 932-4422 to register by October 17th.

Protecting your car's finish

By winter's end our nation's highways (and its cars) will have been covered with some 10 million tons of salt. While road salt may save countless lives from icy accidents, it does take its toll on autobodies, reminds the Car Care Council.

Without proper maintenance on a car's protective finish, road salt and its southern partner, salty sea air, can rust fenders and corrode body sheet metal in no time.

The only protection a car has against corrosive environmental conditions is its primer and paint job. Just two gallons, representing approximately one percent of the total cost of the car, serve as a barrier against rust and corrosion.

Since only exposed metal can rust and corrode, trouble begins when a car's nicks and scratches are left untouched. The National Paint and Coating Association recommends a regular maintenance routine to keep a car's finish smooth and its body rust-free.

Start by getting a touch-up paint kit when you get a new car. Repair small nicks and scratches promptly to prevent corrosion. Then follow a regular maintenance routine. Wash your car once a week with warm water, and promptly remove elements such as salt, bird droppings and sap that accelerate corrosion.

Follow with a good coating of wax or other protective finish two or three times a year to provide an additional buffer between the harsh elements and the car body.

If you are involved in a "fender bender" on one of the icy days this winter, be sure that accident repairs include replacement of the rustproofing undercoat.

RAY STAPLEY ON CARS

My 1981, four cylinder Capri has a standard transmission and I've been having trouble in damp weather. After driving for about half an hour recently, it started to lose power and then the engine stalled. I got started by holding the gas pedal hard to the floor, and after the black smoke cleared, the engine ran fine for 15 minutes then stalled again, and I got started in the same way. I have since taken long trips on dry days with no trouble. The engine appears to be flooding, but why would damp weather affect it? The choke and the air/fuel mixture has been checked and it appears to be okay. Have you any suggestions? I. Oicle, Liverpool, N.S.

*Stalling or non-start that occurs only when there is dampness in the air due to rain, fog or dew is commonly triggered by a high voltage leak in the ignition system.

To pinpoint the source of the one or more leaks, with the engine fully heated and running smoothly, spray a mist of water on the coil, distributor cap, spark plug wires, the rubber seals on the plug wires, and watch closely for high voltage sparks. Give special attention to the two seals on the high voltage wire that runs between the coil and the distributor cap.

Replacing any defective items that are located during this test would probably be the cure. As well, the inside of the distributor cap, and the rotor should be checked for minute cracks or wear.

Not cleaning away the oily grime that collects on the ignition system periodically can result in the high voltage going to ground, long before it reaches and fires the spark plugs.

Regarding the black smoke you mentioned. After the engine stalls when the car is being driven, gasoline can be drawn into the combustion chambers. Then, if the engine finally starts, the rich mixture ignites, resulting in black smoke from the exhaust for a short time.

I bought a 1982 Chrysler LeBaron two months ago. On the second day out on a trip and thirty miles (48 km) from home, I parked on a slight incline in a driveway and the automatic transmission locked in "park". The Chrysler dealer sent a tow truck and the driver told me to always apply the parking brake before shifting into park, when on an incline. Now I'm nervous every time I park for fear I'll be stranded again. One more question. Do I get more miles per gallon of gasoline, or less when using cruise control? Thank you. R. Thomson, Simcoe, Ont.

*Seldom, if ever will the automatic transmission's parking mechanism stick in "park" when the following procedure is used.

Whether parking on a grade, or a level road, the first and most important is to firmly apply the parking brake before selecting "park".

To confirm that this brake is properly adjusted and mechanically sound, test it when parked on a steep grade. If the car does not remain stationary with the parking brake fully applied — do not select "park" or apply the regular service brake — consult your dealer.

If the parking mechanism tends to bind when engaging or releasing it, having this mechanism checked and repaired as required would prevent further problems.

Regarding cruise control, none of my cars have been so equipped. However, after recording every drop of fuel that was burned on a long highway trip, a friend who has this device reported an eight per cent improvement in gas mileage. Furthermore, he was not concerned about exceeding the posted speed limits.

Send your questions to Ray Stapley, c/o Toronto Star Syndicate, One Yonge Street, Toronto, Ontario, M5E 1E6. Those of the greatest general interest will be published. Please keep letters brief and include phone number if possible.
