A Canadian

A Canadian comes from many lands,
With many tongues entwined,
But because our land is safe and free
All woes are left behind.

Without prejudice, or envy,
We're one big melting pot,
We're one for all, and all for one,
Americans we're not.

So with Quebec wanting special status,
And the French being maligned by the West,
We're starting to get Americanized,
So let me get this off my chest.

If you don't want to pull together,
And treat each other equally fair,
Go South and become an American,
And get to hell out of our hair.

"Amen"

Cystic Fibrosis Q&As

How Does Cystic Fibrosis Affect Everyday Life?

(NC) - For people with Cystic Fibrosis (CF), life includes a daily routine of therapy and periodic visits to a CF clinic. Otherwise, most individuals with cystic fibrosis lead normal lives, for many years, in terms of education, physical activity and social relationships. Eventually, however, lung disease places increasing limits on daily life.

Cystic Fibrosis is an incurable inherited disorder which mainly affects the lungs and digestive system. Most people with cystic fibrosis eventually die of lung disease. Thanks to advances in research and clinical care, growing numbers of children with CF are surviving into adulthood. In 1960, when the Canadian Cystic Fibrosis Foundation was founded, a child born with Cystic Fibrosis stood only a 50% chance of living long enough to start school. Today, in Canada, the median age of survival is over 30 years.

At present, over one-third of all Canadians with CF are over the age of 18 years. These men and women are pursuing post-secondary education, careers, and many are having families of their own.

For further information on CF, contact your local Canadian Cystic Fibrosis Foundation Chapter, or contact the national office at (416)485-9149.

Canada Trust Sponsors Jazz Band Showcase at the Lilac Festival

Lilac Festival committee announced today that their 1997 Festival will open with the First Canada Trust High School Jazz Band Showcase on May 31, 1997. Four high schools have been selected to take part this year.

The show case will be presented at the Bandshell from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Four jazz bands taking part are Char-Lan High School directed by Robert Goodbun, General Vanier High School directed by Michael Nowicyj; Saint Lawrence High School directed by Dan Shaer and ESRG-GD High School directed by Pierre Vaillancourt. All four bands have played in various competitions and won prizes. Fans of Jazz will enjoy the showcase which the committee hopes will grow each year within the Lilac Festival.

Canada Trust has been a major supporter of the Lilac Project. Its Friends of the Environment Foundation has contributed towards planting of several hundred lilacs of about 50 varieties in the Lamoureux Park. They have also contributed $3,000 to the Lilac Memorial Garden.

Several other new fun activities are being added this year. Cornwall General Hospital Bed Race teams will be taking part in the parade followed by races in the East parking lot of the Civic Complex. There will be games for children, youth and adults.

The program for the day will include parade with bands, horses, clowns, groups, antique cars etc. Entertainment will be available both at the bandshell as well as Cornwall Square in the afternoon and the bandshell in the evening. Variety 104.5/Hometown Radio CJSS will be holding a sale of old 45 RPM/LP records - some of these are collectors items.

This year's Festival is sponsored by businesses and organizations who would like to see Cornwall bloom. They are:

Cornwall Square
KAV Productions
Maynard's Your Independent Grocers

The Search Is On: Annie

Dream Maker Productions is searching for a few good kids for this summer hit musical Annie. The hit Broadway musical is celebrating it's twentieth year, and this year the show will be performed in Cornwall. "It should prove to be a huge success" states Director Kelly-Anne Long. We are looking for some talented kids that are not afraid to put in a little hard work. This is the kind of show that all invalid will look back on with a smile."

Dream Maker has just produced the musical Grease and will be repeating that show this fall. But Annie is what we're concentrating on now "Not only will we be auditioning children" states producer Janet Laduc, "but we will be excepting adults for the grown up roles. So if you sing, dance or act and would like to take part in a super summer show, this is the one for you."

The first set of audition will take place at the Brookdale Mall between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. For further information call us at 937-4012.

How to Achieve Your Investment Goals

Warren Buffett is widely regarded as one of the most astute and successful professional investors of all time. He started out in the 1950s with an inheritance of $100,000 or so. Today, he is ranked the second richest person in the United Sates with a net worth of approximately $12 billion.

Warren Buffett is an excellent model for the aspiring investor. And if you're like most people, you probably wouldn't mind being a bit like Warren Buffett yourself. But the truth is, some people are successful investors and some aren't. In fact, two almost identical people investing in similar stocks or mutual funds can experience very different investment returns over their lifetime.

Often, the key to what differentiates their performance is planning, patience and long-term thinking. These are simple virtues to possess and simple words to say - but they can make all the difference to your overall investment success.

Let's therefore examine some steps to consider when you're discussing your financial or retirement goals with your advisor. Don't forget: if you are prepared to examine your personal and financial goals carefully, you will have taken the first step to increasing the probability of your investment success.

Five Keys to Achieving Your Investment Goals

1) Clearly identify your overall investment goals before you begin to invest. You are unique. Your personal lifestyle and financial goals are unique. And you have your own reasons for investing, specific financial resources, investment time horizon, risk tolerance, aptitude and understanding of investment products and ultimate financial needs. So first get to know yourself - your needs and future goals - before you begin to invest. Consult with a professional advisor who is skilled at listening and knowledgeable about your investment options. Then along with your advisor, choose the investments that meet your objectives and are most appropriate for your present and future needs.

2) Once you have assessed your investment objectives, don't wait to invest - get time on your side today. Research has confirmed that it is difficult, to say the least, to time the market - in other words, there is no perfect time to invest. So once you've assessed your goals, don't wait to invest - do it now. That way, you will be harnessing the power of compounding over a greater time period to make your investment grow. The proof - an investment of only $500 per month, earning 10% compounded annually, inside an RRSP will be worth over $1.1 million in 30 years.

3) Invest regularly, not just once a year at RRSP time, but on a periodic, disciplined basis. Even if you can contribute only a small amount to your mutual fund investment program on a regular basis, you'll still be ahead of the game. The reason is dollar-cost averaging. Dollar-cost averaging is a proven investment technique that makes dollars and sense. By investing regularly, you will tend to buy fund units at different prices over the longer term: that is, more units when prices are lower, and fewer units when prices are higher. So chances are, your average unit price over time will be below the current market level. A PAC (pre-authorized chequing plan) is your easiest and most direct way to benefit from dollar-cost averaging.

4) Keep it simple: select investments that match your objectives. Use short-term investment vehicles for short-term investment needs - not vice versa. For example, the longer your time horizon, the less dependent you should be on short-term investments like Guaranteed Investment Certificates, particularly in the present interest rate environment. Instead, consider equity and bond funds for enhanced returns. But if your goals are indeed short term, stick to guaranteed return products.

5) Ask an advisor to help you monitor your investment on a regular basis. You use a doctor for medical advice. Why not use an advisor for investment advice? Your advisor can help ensure that your strategy is on track, recommend new fund choices and respond quickly and intelligently to your challenging personal and financial needs.

Advisors are professionals who can help you get useful background information and assists you in making informed decisions about the funds that are most appropriate for your financial future. So call us. We're here to help.

Build That New Fence With Wood —& Help Protect The Environment

(NC)—When you shop for materials to build your new fence or deck, you probably think about things like appearance, ease of installation, and cost. But what about the cost to the environment of the building materials that we buy?

Over 80% of Canadians believe that sustaining the environment is a major priority. Many of us do our part by recycling newspapers, adding extra insulation in our homes, and walking to the video store at the corner instead of driving. But we also make a major impact on the environment when we choose building materials, often without realizing it.

Wood is a popular and attractive choice for many outdoor landscaping projects. Due to sustainable forestry practices, the volume of wood in Canada's productive forests increased by 35% over the last 20 years. Last year alone, about 700 million seedlings were planted. That's over 20 trees planted for each Canadian.

But what about that chain-link fence, those concrete patios stones or that vinyl lounge chair? How do we replace the thousands of tons of ore that went into the manufacture of steel, or the millions of litres of petroleum that went into making plastic components?

The answer is—we can't. Those resources are finite. Once we consume them, they are gone forever. And the manufacturing process has added to the world's pollution problems.

A study by the Canadian Research Alliance examined the relative environmental impacts of various building materials. The results clearly demonstrate that the manufacture of wood products is cleaner, less wasteful, and consumes less energy than the alternatives.

Life-cycle analysis shows that a steel wall requires 3 to 6 times more energy to extract, manufacture and construct than a wood wall. The steel wall also uses 25 times more water in its manufacture, and releases 3 to 6 times more carbon dioxide emissions.

The manufacture of concrete produces 2 to 3 times more carbon dioxide than wood, and results in 5 times more solid waste.

The production of aluminum generates 8 times more polluting emissions in the air and 300 times more in the water, than the manufacture of lumber. The manufacture of aluminum siding requires 5 times more energy than lumber.

So when you go to buy the materials for that new fence or deck, consider the alternatives—and make an informed choice.

For more information contact the Canadian Wood Council at 1-800-463-5091.

Wood Facts

Did you know?

The forestry industry employs more people in Canada than any other single industry.

(NC)—In 1995, over $10 billion in wages was paid to the 350,000 Canadians who work directly in the forest, wood or paper industries. When associated jobs are included, the industry provided employment for one out of every 15 Canadian adults, or almost a million people.

In the last 20 years, the total volume of wood in Canada's productive forests has actually increased by 35%. Sustainable forest management is helping to ensure future jobs for the 340 Canadian communities that depend on the forest industry.

ENVIRONMENT WEEK June 1-7
Making Our Communities Healthier

Environment Week
June 1-7

Take stock, take action

(NC)-OTTAWA — Environment Week can be something like New Year's—a time to take stock and to resolve to take action.

In planning for Environment Week June 1-7, every one can help improve and protect the environment through being aware and changing routines. Little things such as walking to the corner rather than driving, using alternatives to herbicides...with more and more people participating, the result will be healthier neighbourhoods.

Thousands of people across Canada have been involved in more than 250 Action 21 projects which deal with specific environmental projects ranging from cleaning up fish spawning creeks to holding clinics for checking car emissions. Many focus on disposing household hazardous wastes and encouraging neighbours to become environmentally-conscious.

Here are some easy goals for Environment Week '97:

- walk, bike or use public transit for two more trips each week to reduce car emissions;
- reduce pesticide use on gardens and lawns; and
- take the lead in making others aware of the environment

Action 21 is a year-round Environment Canada program where financial help is possible for non-government, not-for-profit groups and organizations to undertake projects relating to clean air, toxic substances, biodiversity and preserving ecosystems in their communities. The program can provide up to 50 percent of the eligible costs of community-based projects where groups at least match the federal funds with local money or in-kind support.

ENVIROfact

(NC)—Experts from OECD countries say climate change, auto emissions and ocean fish stocks are all issues that will receive increased attention in the next few years. Climate change leads the pack and surveys indicate that Canadians view it as a global problem. Seventy-four percent of respondents in a 1996 survey said air pollution was a global concern while 18 percent said it was a local concern.

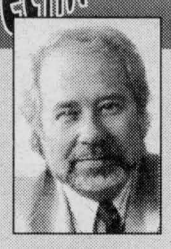
Family Incomes Drop While Rich Get Richer

PERSPECTIVE



By Bob Roth
SEAWAY NEWS

"Corporate restructuring," "being competitive," "outsourcing," "privatization."

These have become the buzz-words of the 90s, as the neo-Conservative agenda continues to capture the commanding heights of meaning within our society.

And who could disagree with such terminology? Surely we should always be "restructuring" with changing times. Surely "being competitive" is the essence of a free market economy and surely "outsourcing" is an excellent means to obtain such efficiency. Surely the private sector can outperform the public sector in the provision of services?

We have come to regard these "truths" as self-evident, beyond question, almost as if they had been etched on two stone tablets.

The time has come to deconstruct some of this conventional wisdom, in light of the recent revelation that the average family is financially worse off today than it was in 1980 - significantly at a time when banks and other corporate profits are on the rise.

Income taxes, combined with inflation, little growth in job earnings, reduced government transfer payments and a weak economy left the average Canadian family worse off than it was 15 years ago, Statistics Canada reported last week.

And, the stats show that the gap between rich and poor is growing.

In other words our economy is being "restructured" in such a way as to take away money from ordinary families and put it into the pockets of the wealthy. It's that simple.

When you cut down on the public sector - that supplies services to all Canadians - and put that money into the private sector, those who own the private sector companies benefit most.

But government doesn't create jobs, we are told, only the private sector does. That must come as a great surprise to the nurses, firefighters, ambulance drivers and host of other working Canadians who provide a valuable service to us.

But, the right wing argues some of this work can be done cheaper by the private sector, by "outsourcing."

Indeed, and at what price? Outsourced jobs are usually lower-paying, resulting in the scenario I described in my first paragraph. What "outsourcing" is all about is driving down wages, making Canadian families poorer - and it's working. In other words, it doesn't make much sense to get a tax cut, if that tax cut is going to be followed by lower wages when your job is privatized and when you are also hit with new "user fees" as senior levels of government download the deficit onto municipalities.

In short, we're being conned.

As for those jobs the private sector will create with all of that increased profit - let's look at the facts.

During the 90s for example, Bell Canada made $714 million in profits and cut 10,000 jobs. Thomsom made more than $1 billion and cut 1,800 jobs. Alcan made $360 million and cut 18,000 jobs. General Motors made $1.4 billion and cut 7,555 jobs.

I could go on, but you see the point.

There is in fact no guarantee that taking money from the middle class and giving it to the corporate elite creates jobs. Those profits are just as likely to be invested offshore, e.g. in Mexico or Asia, thereby taking jobs out of Canada, or in new technology to eliminate even more jobs.

In other words being "competitive" means lowering Canadian wages and working conditions to a level where we can compete with Mexico, Korea or India. This is a mug's game - a race to the bottom of the economic pile where we will have to compete with countries that have poor environmental standards, poor medical care and poor (if existent at all) labor rights.

In other words, we are in a "competition: to see who can lower the standard of working people the most.

What is so amazing is that so many ordinary working Canadians are buying into this right-wing model - a model that is designed to impoverish them.

Think about it before you vote.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

3rd Rock From The Sun?

Dear Editor:

I can't help but wonder what planet Mr. Hooper was on during the Cornwall Police Services Board meeting held on May 8, 1997 at 1:30 PM. The meeting started on schedule (I was in attendance) and Mr. Hooper arrived some 10 - 15 minutes late missing the awards presented to some of our citizens.

The editorial entitled "Parting Shot" in the May 10th edition of the Standard-Freeholder, makes me wonder if the author's mind (I assume it was Mr. Hooper, since he was the only reporter present from your newspaper and the editorial author is not mentioned) was somewhere else other than at the meeting. Perhaps he was concentrating too hard on his "Opinion" column and not the board meeting. Having served sixteen (16) years as a police officer in the city of Cornwall, I am well aware of the morale problems existing at the Cornwall Police Services and the lack of attention this situation has received by the majority of the Police Board. This was one issue the mayor was addressing during his farewell speech. The police officers of this community deserve better treatment from some of their senior officers. They are a dedicated group of people working under a great deal of stress and they don't need the added stress of senior management treating them the way they do.

I did not perceive Mayor Martelle's comments as being a "swan song", he was merely trying to help the police officers of our community do a better job and alleviate some of the stressors. The officers and the last line of defense between YOU the citizens and the criminals and the officers must be in top shape both physically and mentally. It is unfortunate that some people in senior administration and the Police Services Board are too busy being politically correct rather than be compared to a "boil" as stated in your editorial. Comparing anyone to a boil is wrong and totally disrespectful.

Instead of investigating the problem, Mr. Hooper comments on the Mayor's statement and there is no doubt in my mind that the reporter will never win an award for investigative journalism. Mayor Martelle is not out of step as you suggest, he is right on the money and is not afraid of tackling sensitive issues. Perhaps if he got support from other members of the board, he would not have to make strong statements. I did not perceive the mayor's comments as rhetoric or self-pity and frankly, your editorials are beginning to sound like rhetoric and are pitiful.

Finally, as a former police officer, I was pleased to see that someone at the board level was attempting to address an issue that has gone on far too long. The taxpayers of this community should be asking why so much of their tax dollars are being spent on consulting or legal fees. This would suggest to me that someone doesn't know what he/she is doing.

To my former colleagues at the Cornwall Police Service, keep up the good work. What goes around, comes around!

Children & Learning

Here is another indication of what is so wrong with our public schools.

Just last week, I attended a seminar in Toronto given by Dr. Todd Heatherton, a noted psychologist who teaches at the prestigious ivy league university, Dartmouth College, in the United States.

In his discussion, Dr. Heatherton unveiled the results of a new study he had just completed which shows that the "child-centred" learning philosophy adopted by our public schools during the last two decades is wrong.

The study, which is about to be published by Harvard University, shows that children do not gain any self-esteem whatsoever from child-centred learning techniques. Self-esteem, it has been discovered, comes from learning the essentials of education, not from trying to make a child feel good about himself.

This is yet another reason why our public schools are failing so miserably in their ability to educate children properly. Child-centred learning techniques were adopted because it was felt that children would do better if they were happier about themselves, even if it meant that they should be passed when all other indicators showed that they should receive a failing grade.

"Child-centred learning does not increase self-esteem," said Dr. Heatherton. "What children need to learn are the basics in education and if they live up to that challenge, they should pass their grade. If not, they should be failed. Doing well in school increases self-esteem. It is not increased by making a child happy simply for the sake of being happy."

And, in a stinging rebuke to the educational bureaucracy which has hijacked Ontario's schools, he said: "Educators need to change their philosophy. We're producing a whole generation of children who aren't equipped to deal with the world and, moreover, we're not even increasing their self-esteem."

MEANWHILE...

Fred Sagel

Are all those bureaucrats and self-consumed teachers' unions listening? Or do they care about hearing objective evidence?

Another clue as to what's wrong with our public schools: Classroom teachers constitute barely more than 65 per cent of school employees in Ontario. By way of contrast, in other countries where educational results are far better than our own, the teaching staff ranges from 80 to 90 per cent of the total. And, of course, in Catholic schools, the administrative staff is much smaller than that of the public schools.

This is all the more reason why Mike Harris and his government must be supported in their drive to change Ontario's school system. School boards are inefficient and costly. We have far too many of them, even after all of the reforms suggested by Mr. Harris are implemented.

Better still, rather than cut down the number of school boards, why don't we eliminate them entirely and institute a system of charter schools which operate independently and in competition with one another?

For a number of years, I've been urging parents and school boards to look at the province's Catholic schools for lessons in efficient administration, good teaching, rigorous curriculum, economy and discipline. In recent years, this message seems to be getting across.

Just this month, the CBC carried a report which explained the virtues of Catholic schools, including the fact that they "appear to do more with less money."

It is a lesson that was driven home clearly after a friend of mine enrolled his child in a separate school this year after years of dissatisfaction with the public school system. He found that discipline was better, administration less costly and the education which his child received was much superior.

While that one example certainly can't be used as proof that separate schools are better, it is good proof as to why Catholic schools -- which also need a lot of improvement -- are better than public schools.

After a man goes back and visits his boyhood town he discovers it wasn't the old home that he wanted.

It was his boyhood.

Anon.

You don't have to be Lawrence Welk or Pat Boone to know that the nostalgia business is alive and well, here at the butt-end of the twentieth century. Just take a long look around.

Down the street from where I work there's a cafe-cum-night club that could have come right out of a Nick and Nora Charles mystery movie. The sound system features music from the thirties and forties. Smoky old saxophone serenades ... vocals by legends like Rosemary Clooney, Tony Bennett, Lena Horne and Frank Sinatra before he got his Senior Citizen's card.

It's Lounge Music. And it's back in a big way.

The same joint features old-fashioned drinks too. Such as ... well, Old-Fashioneds. Not to mention Manhattans, Margueritas and that quintessential Lounge Libation - the Martini.

I've never been able to figure out the appeal of the Martini. Gin and Vermouth are two of the more taste-bud shattering forms that alcohol can take. Put them together and you've got a drink that ought to be banned under the Geneva Convention. But no, Martinis are back.

And they're hot. So hot that the Internet is awash with Websites featuring thousands of wild and woolly cocktail recipes.

Beats me. Maybe it's the olive. After all, the logo for the rock group U-2's world tour is a giant olive on top of a toothpick.

Retro-fashion is big again too. I keep running into guys wearing suits with lapels that bat colonies could nest under. The same guys (I think they're trying to come across as Rudolph Valentino incarnate) favour those skinny ties that went out about 1957. The ladies that hang off their arm are swathed in boas and frilly little frocks that I haven't seen since I Love Lucy went off the air.

Long-playing records are back as well. Yuppies seem to have discovered that after spending umpteen thousand dollars on their state-of-the-art laser disc, digital extravaganzotic stereo system, what they really prefer to hear is the scratchy, intimate music they get from good-old fashioned vinyl.

Incontrovertible proof that we have completely lost it culturally? I offer Exhibit A: the resurgence of the cigar. Suddenly, all the Beautiful People are appearing in public, with giant, stinky stogies stuck in their pusses. My corner newsstand is abloom with magazines like Cigar Aficionado and For Cigar Lovers Only featuring glossy full-colour photographs of Hollywood glitteratti like Arnold Schwarzenegger, Danny DeVito, Mel Gibson, Tom Cruise ... even Wayne and Janet Gretzky ... all puffing away on Havanas the size of French baguettes.

I submit that when smoldering cigars become a fashion statement, a culture is in serious free fall. What you're seeing is a society so bankrupt for new ideas that it's snatching up old ones.

But that's okay. Plus ca change, as the French say.

Reminds me of the story about the college kid who answers a knock on the door. A middle-aged stranger is standing there. "May I come in?" asks the stranger. "This is the room I had when I went to college."

The kid lets the man in, and the man tours the room, lost in memories. "Yep" he murmurs, "same old room. Same old furniture. Same old view from the window. Same old closet."

And he opens the closet door to find a young woman, in a state of, as the French say, deshabille, cowering in the corner.

"Uh, that's my sister" says the college kid.

"Yep" says the visitor, "same old story."

Andria Gaudet
by Jennifer Landon

Hello! I'd like you to meet Andria Gaudet. Andria is very unique: she marches to the beat of her own drum. She thinks that it would be neat to dress up in a cow suit and play her saxophone on a street corner near the Eiffel Tower in Paris; just as an example of her peculiarity.

Andria is a vegetarian. She doesn't like the killing of innocent animals for food.

"It's just wrong!" she claims. Her favourite food in the world is the Vegetarian Sub at Subway.

Andria is a member of The Royal Canadian Sea Cadets. She meets with the other Cadets on Monday evenings and Saturday mornings. She is a member of the cadet band, playing the saxophone. The band recently entered a competition and won second place, but they should have won first. Andria was angry, she felt they deserved the first place. They practiced a lot and put in many hours of hard work.

Andria's other extra curricular activities: Concert band, Jazz band, Rainbow Girls, and CyberSaints. Andria plays the saxophone in both the Concert band and the Jazz Band. To add to her music repertoire, she also plays the piano.

Andria meets once or twice a month with the Rainbow Girls. She really enjoys being a Rainbow Girl. These colourful girls go on outings such as tobogganning and to the movies. Next month, Andria will be a Worthy Advisor.

Once a week, Andria also goes to CyberSaints meetings. Andria has recently written an editorial for the Spring issue. Andria has her own web site, which I have visited. On it you will find a soap opera, about a somewhat secluded man in New Delhi called Bunk Bed Billy. There is also some poetry written by Andria. She is proud of her homepage.

Andria is a spontaneous girl, a good friend and an excellent person to get to know if you want a little creativity and colour in your life.

A Heritage Moment: Celebrating Beer's Unique History

In a world all too commonly shaped by fads and trends, there are very few traditions and products that stand the test of time. Brewing is one such tradition and beer is one such product.

While gathering together on hot summer days with good friends to enjoy a cold beer may seem like a 20th century invention, people through the ages have enjoyed the fine art and craft of brewing.

Evidence shows that people have been making beer for more than 5,000 years - in fact, the world's second most popular beverage is linked to the Egyptians before the pyramids. Ancient records of Scandinavia, Greece, China and Rome also mention beer. In North America, not to be outdone, some historians say a lack of beer was a contributing factor leading to the early landing of the Mayflower at Plymouth.

Here in Canada, brewing doesn't have quite as lengthy a history but certainly carries on the colorful brewing tradition of other cultures.

In fact, one of the country's most significant contributors to brewing culture - Labatt - celebrates its 150th anniversary in 1997. The company has a rich history of personalities, events and milestones that helped shape brewing in Canada.

"When John Kinder Labatt made the difficult journey from Ireland to Canada as an immigrant in the early 1800s, I doubt very much that he envisioned his role in creating what today is one of the world's most successful brewing organizations," said Don Kitchen, president, Labatt Breweries of Canada.

When John Kinder Labatt purchased part of a tiny, little brewery in 1847, the vision of his four, horse-drawn carriage fleet must have seemed extraordinary given that brewing was still relatively undeveloped in Canada. At this point in history, Sir John A. Macdonald was first entering cabinet and Montreal and Toronto were just connected by telegraph.

At the time, Labatt wrote "I have been considering this brewing affair for some time, and think it would suit me better than anything else."

Since that time, beer and indeed Labatt have enjoyed a unique relationship with Canadian culture. One of few major brewers to survive prohibition, which swept Canada from its Saskatchewan base in 1915, Labatt has pioneered a number of brewing innovations. The Labatt brewing team today has inherited a great brewing tradition from unique personalities who have shaped the company and to a great extent the Canadian brewing industry.

For example, John S. Labatt, kidnapped by gangsters in 1934 and released after a week, was the victim of one of the country's most famous kidnapping cases.

From old-fashioned stubby bottles and Labatt Blue balloons floating overhead, to small gatherings of friends and to major league baseball, arts, sports and entertainment, beer will likely continue to play an important role in our culture. Labatt Breweries of Canada – celebrating 150 years of good things brewing in 1997.

Beer Facts:

Canadians have a special love for their beers, sipping more than 2 billion litres of brew per year. Other fascinating facts:

- Beer is the world's second most popular beverage, second only to coffee.
- Four basic ingredients go into every great beer (hops, barley, yeast and, of course, water).
- Labatt introduced the first twist-off caps in 1984.
- A recipe for beer was found on a clay tablet dating back to about 1800 BC (older than the pyramids!).
- The equivalent of roughly 5.5 billion bottles of beer are sold each year in Canada.

When you read this I will, hopefully,be doing battle with a hefty pike somewhere on the St.Lawrence River. This is the weekend for the 9th annual pike tournament sponsored by the SOUTH LANCASTER FISH AND GAME CLUB.The event is headquartered at Raisin River Marine at the bridge at South Lancaster. Anglers will be on the river all day Saturday and Sunday hoping to land a sizeable fish that is sometimes called "big jaws" or "croc" and to share in the $3,800.00 in cash prizes (based on 200 entries). Spectators are reminded to be at the marina during each afternoon on Saturday & Sunday to watch the boats arriving with their catch for the weigh-in. The fishing will officially end at 3pm on Sunday. Good Luck to all!!!

This is also the long Victoria Day weekend and it appears that the weatherman will try to co-operate. We are promised some rays of sunshine over the next few days. So try to get out and enjoy the long-awaited arrival of spring weather .It is also semi-finals time in the NHL Stanley Cup hunt. There will be games on TV with Detroit and Colorado and Eric Lindros and the Flyers in their best-of-seven series with Wayne, Mark and the Rangers. How about that GOLD medal performance by TEAM CANADA with their win over Sweden in a best of three series. And while we're at it we should also salute the Juniors in the exciting Memorial Cup Tournament going on at Hull. The final game is slated for Sunday afternoon.

We remind everyone again about the R.C.A.F.A.,Wing 424, Charter afternoon wine & cheese on Saturday, May 17. It starts at 4:00pm and members and guests are welcome to participate. Here's a reminder also that the May Birthday Party for members is scheduled for May 25th. Members and guests get together for the afternoon to share some sandwiches, birthday cake, conversation and great dance music starting at 2:00pm at the RCAFA building on Water Street West. Not long before the SEAWAY SENIORS

It stars a cast of senior citizens and there will be music, comedy and dance at St. Lawrence College at Aultsville Hall on Sat. May 24. Two shows are planned for 1:30pm and at 7:30pm. Remember the great weekend drives along the River on Highway #2 East back when the Edgewater Inn was the popular place to be? Well that same atmosphere is back at the NEW EDGEWATER INN RESTAURANT in their smoke free dining room. Why not pay them a visit this weekend at the same location on Highway #2 just east of Summerstown.

Congratulations are in order for ALDERMAN DICK AUBRY in winning the nod from council to take over at the end of the month from departing Mayor Martelle. And good luck also to Ron as he takes on a new role and a new adventure. Happy Trails Ron!

Some terrific movies playing in town these days with first-run features like Volcano, Fifth Element, and Austin Powers at the Brookdale Cinemas at the Brookdale Mall. Kurt Russell in Breakdown is playing at the Port and there's Dante's Peak and Liar Liar playing this weekend at the Colonial Drive-In at Ingleside.

This Saturday is your last chance to catch the Theatre Ontario Festival '97 Play at Aultsville Hall at St.Lawrence College. Its the last in the series and if you read this early enough you may be lucky to get tickets. CALL 937-GLEN.

Another happy weekend in store at the GLENGARRIAN PUB & RESTAURANT with a Victoria Weekend Blast featuring the CAPE BRETON BARBARIANS on Fri. & Sat. and HADRIAN'S WALL on Sunday. Ask The Dentist

What Is Nitrous Oxide?

by Dr. Louis Cardinal

Nitrous oxide also known as "laughing gas" is an odourless gas which affects the central nervous system. It has been used in medicine and dentistry for many years and is considered one of the safest forms of sedation available. Patients who are anxious and uncomfortable about their dental treatment, nitrous oxide can provide them with enough sedation to make their treatment more acceptable. The benefits of using nitrous oxide are numerous, one being that you remain conscious and fully aware during treatment. It is administered through a nosepiece and the depth of sedation can be varied at will by the dentist as well as the patient since breathing through your mouth as opposed to the nosepiece will decrease the dose. Vice-versa if you wish to increase the dose you can concentrate on breathing through your nose. During sedation all your protective reflexes are intact which means you will respond normally to any stimulus and remain in control. Furthermore, your dental treatment will progress more smoothly since it helps eliminate fear and reduces anxiety by helping you relax. Individual patients experience its effects differently however. Generally, as the depth of sedation increases you will experience tingling and numbness in your hands and feet, warmth, numbness in your legs, tongue and other soft tissues of your mouth. Many experience a feeling of euphoria with sounds becoming more distant. Your extremities may feel heavy or light depending on your individual response. One advantage of nitrous oxide sedation is that it can be discontinued at any time should you feel it is not pleasant. Either way, when terminated your dentist will make you breathe 100% oxygen so that when dismissed you will feel normal again. One common misconception about nitrous oxide is that no injections of local anaesthetic will be required. Unfortunately, due to the mild level of sedation provided by nitrous oxide, an anaesthetic can be avoided only for the most minor procedures. However, if you have an unusual fear of injections, receiving the local anaesthetic while sedated will drastically reduce your anxiety. For some patients that is enough reason to use nitrous oxide.

GOLF FACTS

Golf Facts

(NC)—Golfers across Canada can save at least 40% off the cost of new name brand golf balls by buying reprocessed balls by their favourite brand and having them sent by courier right to their door.

The company that saves golfers this money by supplying them with Grade A recycled golf balls is Golf Balls By Fax., a Richmond Hill based recycler.

"Using these recycled balls doesn't affect the golfers play but the difference is noticed in their wallets," according to Gary Shienfield president of Golf Balls By Fax. "Golfers feel good because as they are swinging their clubs they know how much they've saved as well as knowing that they've help clean up the environment."

Gear Up for Bicycling and Gear Up for Safety!

(NC)—The Canadian Medical Association (CMA) estimates that our young people are involved in about 2,000 bike collisions a year, with 50 resulting in death. In fact, falls from bicycles account for one-quarter of trauma deaths in children. These incidents usually occur very close to home—on a bike path or a driveway. The good news is that a helmet can reduce the risk of head injury by as much as 85%. Not just any helmet will do—it must be a Canadian Standards Association (CSA) approved cycling helmet which is fitted and worn correctly. It's not always easy to convince your child to wear their bicycle helmet. Here are eight tips on how to get your kids to wear their helmets:

1. Establish the helmet habit early by buying your children helmets when they begin riding either as a passenger or a rider themselves. Make sure their helmets are properly sized an adjusted to fit their heads.
2. Wear one yourself.
3. Whenever you first purchase helmets for your kids, talk to them about why you want them to protect their heads. Involve your child in the purchased of the helmet.
4. Reward your kids for wearing their helmets.
5. Don't let them ride their bikes unless they wear their helmets.
6. Plan bicycle outings together during which all members of the family wear their helmets.
7. Encourage their friends to wear helmets.
8. Remember: Mishaps causing head injuries can occur on sidewalks, driveways, bike paths and parks as well as on streets. You and your children cannot predict when a situation will occur which will end in a fall from a bike. Therefore, it is important to wear a helmet whenever riding even if it's "just down the street".

Boating Myths

(NC)—Everyone knows that boating is fun, but some people who are interested in taking it up, hold back because of myths that have perpetuated around the activity. I'm going to discuss a few, and dispel the fiction.

MYTH: Boating is expensive.

It's not. In fact, it probably costs less to buy and operate a boat than you think. Following are a few examples:

- $10,000 to $18,000 is the average price for a 17 to 19-foot outboard-powered family runabout
- $6,000 to $9,500 for the average aluminum fishing boat with outboard motor
- prices range from $5,700 to $8,700 for a typical Personal Watercraft

Most boats with a selling price above $5,000 can be financed. Many banks, financial institutions and credit unions provide financing for boats. Local boat retailers also provide customized boat loan programs through arrangements with boat manufacturers or local banks. Finally, check boating magazines for financiers' advertisements. Interest rates have never been lower.

MYTH: Boating takes up time I can't afford.

You can use a boat as much or as little as you wish. Time should be seen as an advantage, rather than a disadvantage, of having a boat because boating is the ideal family activity. Spending time with your spouse and/or family on a boat is a perfect way to enjoy each other. Family activities on a boat can include fishing, waterskiing, tubing, and much more!

MYTH: There's too much involved in maintaining a boat.

If you have a modern boat, there is very little maintenance required. All it takes is filling it up with gas—just as you do with a car—and some preventative maintenance your dealer will do at a minimal cost. Before a boat is stored for the winter it requires an oil change and cleaning—that's it!

MYTH: Kids think boating is boring.

Boating is anything but boring. With boating you can incorporate many other exciting activities, including waterskiing, fishing, swimming, and tubing. Exploring Canada's beautiful waterways and geography is perfect by boat. Besides, it's a great way to spend quality time with the members of your family. Take your family and friends out for an adventure they'll remember.

MYTH: Towing and hauling a boat is a hassle.

If you have a trailer for your boat, you simply have to back the trailer into the water and let the boat float right in! It's as easy as that. If you don't have one, your dealer will fit a proper boat trailer to your boat.

Boating is a great activity, particularly for the family. For further information about boat buying, contact the CMMA at 1-800-808-BOAT.

California Cuties Comedy Softball Team

On Wednesday, June 18th, 1997, the local nine man National Trust Bullets softball will oppose the world famed barnstorming comedy team, the California Cuties, in a combination game and comedy show under the sponsorship of National Trust. The action will take place at Joe St. Denis Field in Cornwall with game time set for 7:15 p.m.

The legendary Cuties club is now in its 50th year on the road, and during the entire career of the club, founder, owner Trino Palacios, has never missed a game. When one considers that the Cuties play at least 200 games per season, that adds up to more than 10,000 games in his long career. Trino, an off-season resident of Lakewood, California, performs as player-pitcher-comedian, Madam Hilda, with a supporting cast of pitcher, Fifi the Flirt, catcher, Dumpy Dora , first baseman, Hefty Helen, and shortstop, Main Street Sally. They use only four men against the local nine man clubs, and each superbly talented Cuties player possesses great speed afoot, (needed to cover the entire ball field), each "carries" a strong rifle arm (needed to keep any long ball hitting opponent from scoring), and every one of them is a long ball hitter, with Fifi averaging more than 100 homers per season.

The Cuties don some rather wild ladies clothing when they take to the field, but don't let that lull you into thinking any less of their talents. Each is a long time collegiate or professional ball player, who take to the road for a summer of travel and fun. As an indication of what the locals must face when Fifi takes to the mound, Fifi fires "her" pitches at speeds exceeding 100 miles per hour.

Madam Hilda handles the majority of the comedy throughout the combination game and show, both from her stint on the pitching rubber, and while prancing the sidelines. Hailed as the funniest show in sports today, we encourage you to bring along the kids, Grandma, Grandpa, and even the in-laws, for a great evening of family fun.

The sponsor's share of the gate receipts will be given to the United Way of Cornwall.

The "Cuties" last appearance in Cornwall was August 3rd, 1989.

Hints for Applying Fillers to Wood

(NC)—Wondering whether or not you need to use a filler before you apply a finish to those maple bookshelves you're making? Here are some guidelines to help you decide when, and how, to apply filler to wood.

Fillers are generally required for open grain hardwoods such as oak, chestnut and ash, when you want to have a smooth, glossy finish. The wood from these hardwood trees is characterized by large pore sizes. For a smooth, mirror finish it is recommended that you fill the pores with a paste filler before applying a finish such as varnish or high gloss paint.

Closed grain hardwoods, such as beech, cherry and maple, generally do not require a filler, even if you are going to apply varnish. Softwoods, such as aspen, cedar and pine, are all closed grain and do not require a filler.

• If you plan to stain the wood, you can mix the filler with the stain so the colour will match the wood. This way, the filling and staining is done at the same time. If no stain is being applied, a coloured wood filler that matches the wood should be used. Fillers differ widely, so read the label carefully before you buy.

• To apply filler, use a brush or plastic spatula to spread the filler diagonally across the grain in each direction, then work it in back and forth with the grain. Let the filler dry until dull and flat but not rock-hard (about 10 to 15 minutes). Wipe off the excess with burlap (going across, not with the grain). Let the filler dry overnight, then sand it (going with the grain) and clean it with a tack-cloth.

• To fill nail holes, you can mix sawdust from the wood with white glue. To fill nail holes in knotted wood, you can make various shades by mixing dry powder paint with wood putty. Coloured wood putty crayons are also available for this task.

When you build with wood, you are using the only building material that is renewable. Can we afford to make any other choice?

For more information contact the Canadian Wood Council at 1-800-463-5091.

Products Help Keep Your Garden Thriving

(MS) — You've created a beautiful garden. It looks great now, but the real battle is to keep it looking great. How do you do it? You know that there are several "tricks of the trade," but you're just a novice and have no idea what those tricks are.

There are several products on the market now that will keep your garden thriving. You won't need to know any tricks when you're equipped with these items.

One way to jump-start your garden is by using a product called FastStart, a lightweight fabric that protects newly planted seeds and transplants from frost or insects. The plant and seed blanket acts just like a greenhouse, keeping plants moist and warm. By using it, you'll see 50-percent faster seed germination, as well as earlier blooms and harvest.

To use this blanket, all you do is lay it over your garden bed and secure it with fabric pegs or stones. If the temperature outside gets above 85 degrees, you simply remove the FastStart to avoid overheating.

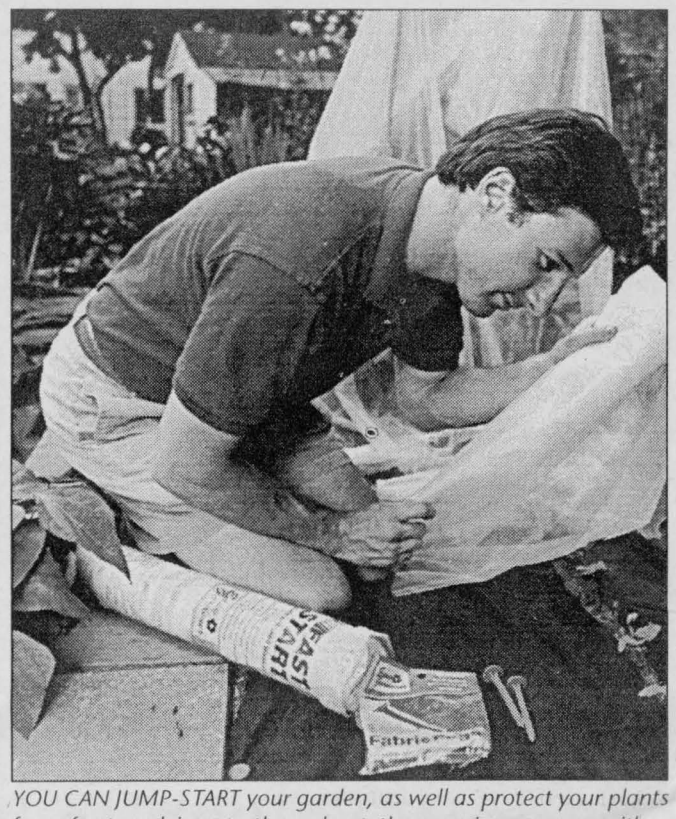
A product that you need to check out in order to help your plants flourish is CloudCover. The nontoxic spray helps plants prosper by protecting them from wind, winter cold, summer heat and transplant shock.

This spray is made up of an acrylic polymer anti-transpirant, which forms a thin film that reduces water loss from the leaf but still lets the leaf breathe normally. The indoor-outdoor plant protector also helps to reduce transplant shock, moisture loss and watering frequency.

Of course, no discussion on effective gardening products would be complete without the mention of Jobe's Plant Spikes. The popular spikes feed plants at the roots, providing them with the continuous supply of the nutrients they need.

Easy to insert, the spikes aren't messy and won't wash through when watered. You can use Jobe's Plant Spikes for indoor or outdoor plants. Most plants, including roses, shrubs, evergreens, flowering plants, aquatic plants, bulbs, fruit and nut trees, garden vegetables, and ferns, can benefit from them.

Today's innovative products really can help your garden thrive. Best of all, you can find these items, as well as other products from Easy Gardener, just about anywhere, from local garden centers to chain retailers.



YOU CAN JUMP-START your garden, as well as protect your plants from frost and insects throughout the growing season, with a product like FastStart from Easy Gardener.

DON'T RISK IT

TURN TO A FRIEND AND WRITE IT DOWN

The time following the death of a family member is extremely emotional causing people to forget wishes discussed earlier. Simply telling a relative or friend your preferences about casket selection, clothing, burial, cremation, etc. is not enough.

Don't take chances. Scheduling the time now to discuss pre-arrangements, writing them down with us, and having a copy made for your family is one of the most loving things you can do.

Besides, a Lahaie & Sullivan pre-arrangement plan is a tax shelter (all interest earned is income tax free), freezes the price at the current level, and allows you to make easy installments to suit your budget.

For emotional and financial peace of mind, don't risk it. Turn to a friend. Call Lahaie & Sullivan Cornwall Funeral Homes today.

Sunny Day Cars

(NC)—It's finally time to rescue your vehicle from the winter dirt and grime. A good interior and exterior cleaning and polishing will have your car, truck or van looking like new again. A good run with a vacuum and a little window cleaner and protectant will do for the inside of your car. But what about the outside? The market for automotive exterior care products is big and bewildering. Your local Canadian Tire offers an array of car care products to keep it looking it's best. Which products do what? What order do you use them in? What's the best way to use them for the fastest and most effective results? Consider the following tips when washing and waxing your vehicle:

Get it squeaky clean

• Use an automotive wash product; they're mild and will not remove a wax finish the way dishwashing liquid will. • Wash your car with a wash mitt; they're less likely than sponges to scratch the vehicle's finish with embedded dirt.

• To dry, choose a synthetic or sheepskin chamois or old terry cloth bath towels.

Polish

• Follow a wash with a pre-wax treatment to polish the vehicle. These products contain fine abrasives to remove surface damage and oxidized paint—a chalky, white film caused by harsh weather.

• Polishes or glazes are similar to cleaners, except they contain fine polishing agents and fillers for tiny scratches to give a shinier, smoother finish.

• Don't confuse polishes with polishing or rubbing compounds: compound means the product is much more abrasive and is meant for cutting through heavily weathered paint finishes.

A little elbow grease does the trick... Waxes add lustre and protection to the vehicle's finish.

• You can choose either a liquid or a paste: liquid is easier to apply, but both types perform equally well.

• Caranuba wax is an extremely durable natural wax made from palm trees in the Brazilian rain forests and is often preferred by professional car detailers.

• Man-made wax products contain synthetics which make them easier to apply and more resistant to water, dirt, acid rain and solvents.

Clean and shine tips

• Wash your car in a shady spot: hot, direct sun will cause spotting.

• Divide your car visually into six sections. This will help you to avoid streaking when washing.

• Dry immediately after washing, from the roof down. It's better to dry the whole vehicle once very quickly, and then return for a second, more thorough pass.

• When waxing, work in sections no larger than one-quarter the size of the roof. Use linear, rather than circular motion: you won't end up with swirl marks this way.

A final tip

• Don't wax the flat black and plastic surfaces, or they will become hazy. Use one of the special plastic polishes for things like bumpers and door guards. Your local Canadian Tire Associate Store has wide assortment of products for cleaning, polishing and waxing your car, including bug and tar remover, brushes, chamois and drying rags.

AUTO TALK

Caravan Clunk

(NC)Q:—I own a 1991 Dodge Grand Caravan with an automatic transmission. The problem it has is that when it downshifts into first gear and upshifts as the vehicle speeds up, it makes a "clunk" sound. Occasionally. there is also a loss of power when moving from a full stop, but just for a moment, when the accelerator is first depressed. Should I be worried that these might be signs of upcoming serious problems with the transmission?

A: Over time, all drivetrains develop wear that causes the transmission not to work as smoothly as it once did. This often results in noise, including clunking and minor changes in how the car's transmission shifts. The driveability problems you're describing do not sound serious, but the next time you have the car in for service, mention them to your technician.

Strenuous Steering

(NC) Q: —I am no longer able to drive my Dodge minivan because of the pain brought about by severe arthritis. Specifically, the pain occurs in my shoulders when I try to turn the steering wheel. My two questions are: 1. Do you know of any company that makes a minivan with easy steering? and 2. Do you know if there is any way the power-assisted steering in my van can be enhanced?

A: The Dodge minivan you own is one of the easiest vans to steer on the market, so unfortunately, I don't have a better answer on that one. The answer that may help you, however, is that your van can be outfitted with either a reduced-effort or zero-effort steering system. Contact Creeco's Freedom Mobility Systems in Toronto or look in the Yellow Pages under Wheelchair Lifts and Ramps. One of the companies listed there should be able to give you more information.

Manual or Automatic: Which Transmission is More Fuel Efficient?

(NC)—Well, it depends. While manual transmissions are generally more efficient than automatic transmissions, there are exceptions.

Transmissions with more gear choices usually deliver better fuel economy. Nine times out of ten a transmission with four forward speeds will be more efficient than one with three forward speeds, especially on the highway.

Buying a New Car?...Get the Guide

(NC)—It doesn't take a genius to figure out that a fuel-efficient car can save its owner a lot of money. What you may not realize, however, is that factors such as type of vehicle, weight, transmission, engine efficiency and accessories, all have a bearing on fuel consumption.

To help you determine which cars are most fuel efficient, Natural Resources Canada and Transport Canada have jointly published the Fuel Consumption Guide. It lists fuel consumption ratings for most new cars, light trucks and vans sold in Canada. Once you've decided on the size and type of vehicle you're after (it's wise to consider lifestyle and regular requirements, use the guide to compare consumption ratings; different vehicle makes and models vary considerably.

How you drive, what season it is, the types of optional equipment you choose and the vehicle's condition also affect your gas mileage. While the guide can't measure these variables, it does provide very useful advice and is a valuable shopping companion. For your free copy, call the Auto$mart Hotline at 1-800-387-2000.

Go For The Best Mileage

(NC)—It makes sense, when you're looking for new wheels, to buy the most fuel-efficient ones you can find. Cars tend to be on the road for 10 to 15 years. By purchasing one with high fuel demands you are sentencing the environment to the emissions this car will produce for all those years.

Consider buying only as much car as you need. Drivers who rarely travel long distances or carry large loads don't really need a large car. When choosing options, be aware that air conditioners, for example, put extra stress on engines, forcing them to work harder and burn more fuel, also put more stress on engines, power windows and seats because of their added weight.

On the other hand, cruise control, fuel injection, radial tires, and block heaters (with a timer) all help to conserve fuel. Aerodynamics are also important. Sleeker vehicles (especially those with tapered front ends) move more easily through the air. As a result, less energy is required to get them going. Blunt-nosed vehicles and options such as roof racks and side windows create additional drag, which means more fuel is burned. Manufacturers apply a label with a fuel consumption rating on every new vehicle. When shopping for a car, look for this number. If it's not visible, ask the dealer or refer to the Fuel Consumption Guide, a booklet jointly published by Natural Resources Canada and Transport Canada. It contains the ratings of all new cars and light-duty trucks sold in Canada. For a free copy call the Auto$mart Hotline at 1-800-387-2000.

Positive Discipline Starts with a Loving Relationship

Rick says he'll never forget the first time he used his new video camera. His children were hunting for Easter eggs, and Rick followed them around the house capturing the events on film. Then they sat down after lunch to watch the replay.

"When I heard myself talking to the kids on the video, I was shocked," Rick recalls. "I never realized how many times I yelled, how many times I told the kids they were bad, how often I said no when I didn't really need to. And this was supposed to be a fun time!"

Parents sometimes become so concerned about maintaining discipline and encouraging appropriate behaviours that establishing a strong and loving relationship with their children gets left behind. But that relationship is really the foundation for effective discipline. Children need to feel loved, understood and appreciated by their parents. Those good, secure feelings help them respond positively to your corrections and guidance.

When discipline starts to seem like "a running battle," it can be a sign that the foundation needs more work. Spending more time together - just enjoying each other's company - will sometimes lead to surprising improvements on the "discipline scene."

Here are some ways to build the parent-child relationship:

• Loving Touch. Physical affection - a good-night hug or a close cuddle while you read a story together - is always important to children. If your older child is embarrassed by hugs, show your affection in small ways.she's comfortable with, like a pat on the back.

• Time together. Even a little bit of undivided attention, just with you - perhaps ten minutes while you tuck him into bed - will bring you closer together.

• Respect Your Child's Feelings. Even if they don't make sense to you, they are real to your child.

• Be Trustworthy. If you make a promise - say to take the family swimming tomorrow - do your best to keep it. If you're really not sure, it's better not to promise.

• Apologize. Nobody is perfect! Saying "I'm sorry" when you make a mistake or lose your temper will let your child know that you care about her feelings.

• Have Fun Together. When you play together and enjoy each other, you rediscover how special your child is. Those good feelings will help you handle the tough times.

As your child grows, you will connect with your child in different ways:

Babies rely on the sense of touch for much of their learning. When you hold, rock, cuddle and talk to your baby, he feels loved and cared for. You can also show your baby that you care about his feelings by comforting him when he cries.

Toddlers are active explorers ("into everything"), and easily frustrated. You can minimize the number of times you have to say "no" by child-proofing your house and removing breakable objects. Outings geared to her speed and interest (at this age, a walk to the park on the next block can take an hour!) will give her a chance to explore and learn about the world. A toddler also needs lots of affection and reassurance - part of her is still a baby!

Preschoolers are more verbal: now listening becomes an essential part of your parenting role. If you have more than one child, it might help to set aside a little time for each one to have your undivided attention. Let your child lead the conversation and share his concerns, thoughts or interests with you.

Older children are busy with school and friends, you may feel left out of your child's life! It can take careful planning to find time for activities that you and your child both enjoy - but even if it's just making a pizza together or chatting while you drive to soccer, that time is invaluable.

THE WORLDS SMARTEST MAN

One night, a Delta twin-engine puddle jumper was flying somewhere above New Jersey. There were five people on board: the pilot, Michael Jordan, Bill Gates, the Dali Lama, and a hippie. Suddenly, an illegal oxygen generator exploded loudly in the luggage compartment, and the passenger cabin began to fill with smoke. The cockpit door opened, and the pilot burst into the compartment.

"Gentlemen," he began, "I have good news and bad news. The bad news is that we're about to crash in New Jersey. The good news is that there are four parachutes, and I have one of them!" With that, the pilot threw open the door and jumped from the plane.

Michael Jordan was on his feet in a flash. "Gentlemen," he said, "I am the world's greatest athlete. The world needs great athletes. I think the world's greatest athlete should have a parachute!" With these words, he grabbed one of the remaining parachutes, and hurtled through the door and into the night.

Bill Gates rose and said, "Gentlemen, I am the world's smartest man. The world needs smart men. I think the world's smartest man should have a parachute, too." He grabbed one, and out he jumped.

The Dali Lama and the hippie looked at one another. Finally, the Dali Lama spoke. "My son," he said, "I have lived a satisfying life and have known the bliss of True Enlightenment. You have your life ahead of you, you take a parachute, and I will go down with the plane."

The hippie smiled slowly and said, "Hey, don't worry, pop. The world's smartest man just jumped out wearing my backpack!!

Ponder this! The Fed's want our firearms and Mike Harris wants to fingerprint all of us HMMM! ..... Europe in the late 30s - Canada in the late 90s.

Three cheers for Bob Roth's article backing Constable Perry Dunlop. He is one of a select few with the courage to publicly support an honest cop doing his job to protect children from a suspected pedophile priest.

Overheard at the bingo: "This is nice, my dabber matches the colour of my card."

Overheard on a Peterborough radio station, Monday, May 12th, between 7:15 a.m. - 7:30 a.m. - a comment made by an uninvited guest, referred to Cornwall as the "Upper Respiratory Tract Disease Capital of the World." A comment of this nature certainly does not enhance our image with tourists.

Tip of the hat to Alexandria Ford Sales - the only place in Alexandria collecting clothes and other articles needed for the victims of the floods in Manitoba.

Congratulations to GARY GAREAU of Atlas Rents for completion of sixteen years of service.

In the leader's televised debate, Jean Charest repeatedly assured Canadians he knew their concerns. He just spent 3-1/2 years criss-crossing Canada listening to the public. Wasn't he paid to have been in the House of Commons representing his constituents??

A huge line-up at Big Ben Ski Hill last weekend for Domtar's 2nd Annual Bag Day. The company was selling 40 lbs. bags of soil conditioner, soil mix, wood chip mulch and Domtar lime, all produced at our Cornwall mill. Members of Cornwall and District Horticultural Society (Friends of the Garden) and Domtar employees were on hand all day, filling 2,674 bags sold to more than 1,200 people. A tremendous response.

It's amazing how much garbage flies in to your yard on a windy day. Let us set a good example to everyone, young and old, not to be a "litter bug" ... let's keep our City clean and beautiful.

What a surprise for VERNON MILLER when he woke up on Sunday morning to find that he had won $250,000 in Saturday night's Encore draw. Congratulation to you, Mr. Miller and your family.

It's just a rumour so far ... but probably a good bet, that former Alderman BILL GALLANT plans on making a comeback in the fall elections.

Sincerest thanks to all the doctors and nurses who gave such wonderful care to me during my stay at the Cornwall General Hospital.

A note to Claude McIntosh: Just because you didn't see any black armbands on May 7th doesn't' mean that we don't miss the Cornwall Aces.

The difference is that some of us have the mental capacity to move on and not live with the past.

Too bad you can't do the same. The team is gone, give us a break, leave it alone and get on with your life!

A daffodil precaution. Place daffodils in a separate vase of water for half a day before combining them in a mixed bouquet. This way, their sap won't poison the other flowers.

The 1996 Water Smart Award was recently awarded to City Hall by the Royal LIfe Saving Society Ontario branch. Barbara Byers, public education director for the society told City Council the award is given for its efforts in drowning prevention public education programs.

A caller sends a "hats off" to GEORGE RUNIONS for his yearly clean up of his road!!

Caller would like to give a big bouquet to Giant Tiger for closing their store on Mother's Day. It would have been nice if all the retailers had done the same thing so their staff could spend the special day with Mom or that Mom could be with their families.

Many thanks to Jazz Magnolia's for their lovely brunch on Mother's Day. The set up was beautiful as well as the atmosphere. Not to mention the free 5"x7" photo's being taken of all families, if they wanted. What a nice gesture.

Trivia fact: Did you know that Mr. Peanut is celebrating 75 years? Mr. Peanut was created by a 14 year old school boy who drew a picture of a very personable peanut, in a contest run by Planters. For 75 years, Mr. Peanut has appeared on every package of Planter's Nuts.

Overheard in an elevator: "He has a waterproof voice - no one can drown it out."

HOROSCOPES

May 18-24

Aries – March 21/April 20
Don't make waves at work this week. Keep your attention focused on your own duties, and leave others to their work. Your opinion will not be appreciated by co-workers right now. Loved ones need your help with some plans. Make time for them even though it will interfere with your social life.

Taurus – April 21/May 21
Your stubborn nature presents problems at work this week. You only see one way to solve a problem, but no one else shares your point of view. Don't alienate yourself from your co-workers. A close friend turns to you for advice in the middle of the week. Don't let your personal feelings stop you from being objective.

Gemini – May 22/June 21
Be sensitive to other people's needs at the office this week. Everyone is not as strong as you when it comes to constructive criticism from superiors. Help co-workers to see the positive side of things. A close friend wants to take you out. Don't refuse.

Cancer – June 22/July 22
It's slow at work this week, which is OK. It gives you time to finish up those little things that always get pushed aside. A loved one needs a lot of your attention this week. Give it to him or her. Not only will it help him or her out, but it will bring the two of you closer together.

Leo – July 23/August 23
You become your manager's confidant at work this week. You learn about decisions that will affect your co-workers, but you have to keep them quiet. While it is difficult, it will lead to rewards from the higher-ups. That special someone surprises you with a romantic dinner. Revel in the attention.

Virgo – Aug 24/Sept 22
Don't stand in a co-worker's way at work early in the week. While you are hoping for all of the attention, it's not yet your turn to shine. Don't worry; your time will come. Loved ones look to you for support this week. Don't turn your back on them. Capricorn and Leo play important roles.

Libra – Sept 23/Oct 23
You are the star at work early in the week. However, don't get over-confident, because the end of the week will change things. You will be out of the loop when it comes to decision making. As for your love life, it is in full swing. Your phone keeps ringing, and you don't know whom to date first.

Scorpio – Oct 24/Nov 22
Don't be wishy-washy when it comes to a managerial decision at work. Stand up for what you think is right, even if it may hurt a co-worker. Think of what's best for the company. You meet an interesting person during the middle of the week. Ask him or her out.

Sagittarius – Nov 23/Dec 21
You're on cloud nine this week. Work is going well, and your superiors are happy with your efforts. That special someone finally makes his or her move. Now's your chance to turn on the charm and work towards a lasting relationship.

Capricorn – Dec 22/Jan 20
Don't get distracted at work this week. Co-workers try to get you involved in their minor conflicts, but stay focused on the job at hand. It's the only way to get ahead in the workplace. Turn to a loved one for help when making an important personal decision.

Aquarius – Jan 21/Feb 18
After a few hectic weeks, work finally takes a turn for the better. You make all the right moves, and your manager notices. Keep up the good work. As for your love life, things aren't as great. You have a fight with that special someone, but don't get discouraged. Everything will work out.

Pisces – Feb 19/March 20
Make your mark this week. Whether it's work or play, you'll shine. Co-workers and friends alike will be impressed with your abilities. You're sure to get noticed. A loved one calls on you for help. Give him or her sound advice. Capricorn plays an important role.

BusinessTravel Takes-Off

(NC)—Business travellers are on the move, both at home and abroad, according to survey results released today by the Canadian Professional Sales Association (CPSA).

This year's survey was sent to 4,300 randomly selected CPSA members. Over 1,000 surveys were returned, representing a response rate of 23%.

"The results of the survey demonstrate a level of optimism not seen since 1993," says Wendy Sue Lyttle, Director, Member Benefits. "More than 88 percent of respondents indicated their travel had increased or stayed the same in 1996 versus 1995. That's a. trend we're predicting will continue into 1997."

CPSA members spent a total of 1,244,500 room nights across Canada and the United States in 1996.

The average business traveller, according to survey results, spends 5.9 nights away from home on business per month, earns an average salary of $70,486 and spends an average of $85.28 per night for a hotel room.

When asked to rank the features most important when choosing a hotel, 83% said that location ranked number one, 75% chose room rate. The importance of environmentally sensitive rooms, which are located on non-smoking floors and equipped with air purifying and water filtration systems was ranked as absolutely necessary or very important by 46% of respondents.

"Business travellers are cost-conscious but also value service and convenience," says Lyttle. "They are experienced, knowledgeable travellers, with specific expectations when checking into a hotel, renting a car, or booking a flight."

For the fifth consecutive year, the Westin Bayshore, Vancouver, won CPSA's Hotel of the Year Award. The property was chosen by members as the hotel which best caters to their business needs. The Comfort Inns Hotels & Suites received the Hotel Chain of the Year Award. Three hotels received awards for Recognition of Outstanding Service: Delta Pacific Resort & Conference Centre, Vancouver; Royal York Hotel, Toronto; and Blackfoot Inn, Calgary.

CPSA is a non-profit organization providing benefits and services to more than 30,000 sales and marketing professionals nationwide. For membership or information call 1-800-268-3794 visit CPSA's web site at http://www.cpsa.com
